

When you work with young children, you are their inspiration. Let us inspire you.

Ethos:

Starcatchers is delighted to be working with the Scottish Government and East Renfrewshire Council to deliver our innovative Creative Skills training programme in 2019/20.

Creative Skills is Starcatchers' unique artist-facilitated training programme. We give early years practitioners, educators and others who work with babies and young children the confidence and skills to put expressive arts at the heart of practice.

For young children to develop a sense of agency and fulfil their rights, they need responsive adults who tune in to their interests with a playful and creative approach. You are their inspiration and we want to develop your skills and confidence to inspire new thoughts and ideas that will help improve outcomes for the children you work with.

Creative Skills is about more than just the sharing of ideas – it's about investing in Early Years practitioners as people and recognising that creative responsive adults are the most valuable "open-ended resource" our children need.

Starcatchers Creative Skills approach shares open ended ideas and techniques designed to give babies and young children a voice – engaging them in decision making, offering opportunities for self-expression, and respecting them as active agents in their own lives. We take an asset-based approach: our artists are experts in the expressive arts for young children, our participants are experts in their own setting and the children they work with, and babies and young children are experts in what interests and motivates them.

"Over the years participants have made the links between the Creative Skills Programme and their own practice, telling me excitedly "This is so Froebelian", "This is so Reggio", "This is so Tina Bruce", "the ideas can be used so well in free-flow play". Every time I do more research, the same answer comes back to me: whatever your Early Years "tribe" the practical ideas we share through the programme support best practice."

Participant Feedback

“The course was brilliant for linking the theory with practical skills, it’s really deepened my understanding of the arts and creativity and how to use it in my practice.”

“The difference in our setting is unbelievable, the training’s made such a difference in our approach - we’ve got kids taking part in activities we used to think they’d never be capable of.”

“I have thoroughly loved the experience. All the artists have been so helpful, inspiring and have made each experience simple to adapt.”
